

The University of North Dakota

Dean of the College of Education & Human Development

The University of North Dakota is seeking candidates for the position of Dean of the College of Education & Human Development (CEHD). Located on an active 521-acre campus in Grand Forks, ND, a vibrant college town of 62,000 residents, UND has a student enrollment of over 14,000 and offers more than 225 fields of study across nine colleges. UND is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission (HLC), with a Carnegie classification of R2 (High Research Activity) based on 2020 data and $117 million in research expenditures.

Reporting directly to the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Dean is the chief executive officer of CEHD and is responsible for its effective administration. The Dean will provide leadership and facilitate an environment for accomplishing strategic goals, as well as aligning the functioning of CEHD with UND's broader academic identity and strategic planning. The Dean is responsible, in cooperation with the Provost, for academic and administrative planning; budgeting; administration and implementation of department, college and university policies; fund-raising and external relations. The Dean, in partnership with the faculty, is responsible for academic program development and review; faculty and staff recruitment; development and evaluation of faculty; and student relations.

More information, including a position profile with a full description of preferred qualifications and key qualities, is available at <https://apptrkr.com/4632773>. The anticipated starting date of the new Dean will be on or before July 1, 2024.
